Re : Jane Gibson

Interviewed : George Freudenmacker at the Maning Storage Warehouse.

Mr. Freudenmacker said that he had heard that Mrs. Easton had made a statement to Detective Kirkham and Frank K. Graves who was coroner. He also states that he had heard that Mrs. Easton was raided somewhere on North Clinton St.

He gave me the name of Frank K. Graves, of 14 Short Street and told me to see him as he worked on the Marshall case. His theory is that the Marshall girl was murdered by being struck on the head by a pipe.

He also gave me the name of Ed Neidt, who knows a woman who could give some information in regards to Mrs. Easton. This man conducts an auto sales store at Broad and Center Streets.

Respectfully submitted:
